

HOW MEN FLY

A man and a woman are shown in flight suits, seated in a glider. The man is in the foreground, wearing a dark flight suit and a hood, looking forward. The woman is behind him, also in a dark flight suit and hood, looking towards the camera. They are both holding onto the metal frame of the glider. The background is a bright red sky with a network of white lines, possibly representing a parachute or a flight path. The overall style is that of a vintage book cover or a dramatic photograph.
